

Frontex, the European Army, start border controls

Written by K B Napier

Monday, 01 November 2010 10:47

"I am pleased to announce that today Frontex has signed with the Greek authorities the operational plan that will allow the deployment of the Rapid Intervention Border teams (Rabit) as of 2 November, with an anticipated duration of up to two months (along the Greek/Turkish border),"

EU home affairs commissioner Cecilia

Malmstrom said in a statement on Friday evening.

\(EUObserver, 30 October 2010\)

There are two issues here - one is that the EU will not stop illegals from entering the UK, and, second, this is the start of a move towards developing an EU army.

© 1 November 2010

---oOo---

{loadposition btm_address}